

Mileage standards through 1985 get committee approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House prepared to begin a week of debate on President Carter's energy plan, a Senate committee voted today to set minimum mileage standards through 1985 as a means of discouraging production of gasguzzling cars.

The Senate Energy Committee also voted as part of its consideration of the Carter energy proposals to double the penalties for auto companies which fail to meet existing mileage standards.

American auto manufacturers now must meet an average for gasoline mileage covering all models they produce. A 1975 law sets that average at 18 miles per gallon for 1978 models, climbing to 27.5 miles per gallon in 1985.

A proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, approved 10 to 6 by the committee, would set a mileage floor. The minimum would begin at 16 miles per gallon for 1980 models and rise to 21 miles per gallon in 1985.

The move was opposed vigorously by the big three American auto makers. Chrysler said it might have trouble with one of its 1980 models if the proposal became law. A Ford official said none of its cars planned for 1980 through 1985 would fall below the minimum set in the Metzenbaum proposal.

Nonetheless, Ford official Fred G. Secrest said there is a danger that a car model might fall below the minimum by a "trivial percentage."

"We might face, therefore, the sudden necessity of closing plants that produce certain models or components, even though our over-all fleet-average efficiency was better than mandated goals."

In the House, meanwhile, the President's energy proposals appeared likely to survive unscathed during four days of scheduled debate and votes.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill said 90 per cent of the President's plan, first revealed last April 20, has won approval from various House committees.

O'Neill has scheduled a full day of debate for today, with three days of votes on various aspects of the program to follow.

Last week, the House voted 238 to 149 to limit voting to 30 specific amendments to the energy plan, plus a comprehensive set of proposals offered by the Republican party. The GOP plan is to be considered in one piece.

The principal battle over the plan is expected to focus on whether to deregulate the price of natural gas or set a $1.75 ceiling, as urged by Carter, for each thousand cubic feet of gas.

House members from oil and gas producing states had hoped for wide latitude in urging variations on deregulation. Instead, they will be limited to proposing full deregulation of gas prices in a form previously defeated in the House Commerce Committee.

Also expected to be hotly debated is a four cent increase in federal gasoline excise taxes, which was approved by the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee. The proceeds from the added tax would go in part to mass transit projects.

Another version to be voted on would increase the present four cent tax by five cents with half the proceeds going to mass transit and the rest to the states for upgrading highways other than those in the Interstate system.

A third proposal that will be subjected to discussion during the floor debate would call any increase in the gasoline tax that is aimed at reducing fuel consumption and encouraging Americans to drive less.

In the Senate, one portion of the President's energy plan — coal conversion — has been approved by a committee and could reach the floor this week. Meanwhile, natural gas deregulation will be voted on by the Senate Energy Committee, where the fight is expected to be as lively as it has been in the House.

On other issues, the Senate has been slowed by a Republican-led filibuster against a bill to subsidize Senate election campaigns. Democratic leaders planned another attempt today to limit debate on the issue.

A House-Senate clean air conference committee met for three days last week, but was unable to reach agreement on major revisions to federal clean air rules.

The auto industry, which says it cannot meet standards currently in the law, is threatening to shut down unless Congress takes some action so the conferees scheduled night sessions for tonight and Tuesday.

Truck route violators to get warning tickets

Public Safety officers will begin issuing warning tickets today to violators of the city's new truck route system, according to City Manager Charles Church.

Violators will receive citations beginning next Monday and on any second offenses during this week.

The truck route system was adopted by the City Council on July 5 to limit commercial truck traffic to designated streets, except to make local deliveries.

The streets designated for truck routes are Malone Avenue from Marian Avenue to the west city limits; Salcedo Road from North Main Street to the west city limits; Murray Lane from Southwest Street to South Main Street; and Ables Road, from Ingram Street to Route AA.

Girl, 14, injured when struck by car

A 14-year-old girl was struck and injured by an automobile and a rural Sikeston woman was hurt when her car hit a utility pole Saturday, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Lori Morrison, 14, of 108 Sixth St., was reported in fair condition today in Missouri Delta Community Hospital from injuries she suffered at 8:49 p.m. Saturday when she was hit by a car.

She was scheduled to have an x-ray examination today, according to a hospital spokesman.

She was hit by a car driven by Terri Ann Stewart, 16, of 502 Carroll Ave., while walking with a companion on Linn Street, about 200 feet east of Ingram Street.

Miss Stewart told officers she did not see the girl until just before she hit her. There were no arrests.

Bernice Irene Lacy, 46, of Route Five, was reported in satisfactory condition at the hospital with a fractured nose and scratches.

She was injured when her car ran off East Malone Avenue and struck a utility pole at the Marian Avenue intersection a few minutes after 6 p.m. Saturday.

Two children in her car, ages eight and 16, were not injured.

The impact broke the pole and temporarily knocked out power and telephone service to the area.

Mrs. Lacy was arrested for driving while intoxicated and improper registration.

Thieves hit Stoddard firm

DEXTER — About $1,000 worth of assorted tools, chain saws and a paint gun were stolen in a break-in at Brown Construction Co., Highway 60, just west of the city limits, sometime between Saturday evening and this morning.

Stoddard County Sheriff Ralph Mouser said a report of the break-in was received by his office at 8:30 a.m. today and on investigation it was found that entry into the building was made by breaking a window in the back portion of the shop and that the intruders left by a sliding door on the west side of the building.

Stoddard County Sheriff's Department is continuing the investigation.

4 receive minor injuries

Four persons received minor injuries in two accidents on area roads Sunday, the highway patrol announced today.

A one-vehicle accident at 4:55 p.m. Sunday on Highway 61, six miles north of Sikeston, resulted in minor injuries to the driver, Thomas Hebert, 18, and his wife, Debbie Hebert, 19, of Sikeston. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

The patrol said Hebert lost control of his southbound pickup truck when the left front tire went flat. The truck ran off the road, struck a utility pole, overturned and came to rest on its wheels.

A two-car accident at 4:10 p.m. Sunday on Highway 62, a half mile east of Bertrand, brought minor injuries to the drivers of the vehicles.

The accident occurred when an eastbound car, driven by Albert Byrd, 19, of Mosco Mills, skidded on wet pavement across the center line in a curve and struck a westbound car, driven by Thomas Baugh, 54, of Memphis, Tenn. roadside.

The injury victims were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital at Sikeston.

N.Y. killer strikes again

NEW YORK (AP) — The killer who calls himself "Son of Sam" marked his first year of terror by pumping slugs into his 12th and 13th victims as they sat in a parked car watching the full moon over New York harbor. One of his victims was near death today.

He struck in Brooklyn, turf untouched in previous forays into Queens and the Bronx and unguarded by the beefed-up police patrols in those boroughs.

Eazy Moskowitz and Robert Violante, both 20-year-old Brooklynites, spent their first date Saturday night seeing a movie, dancing at a popular neighborhood discotheque and walking hand-in-hand in the moonlight.

The date ended Sunday morning with the pair in critical condition at Kings County Hospital, both shot in the head.

Hospital officials said today they were "very pessimistic" that Miss Moskowitz would survive. She was grazed by one shot, but severely wounded by a second that slammed into the base of her skull, shattered bone and lodged in her neck. She underwent eight hours of surgery Sunday morning and, late Sunday evening, was returned to the operating room for an additional 30 minutes to drain fluid from her nasal cavity.

Her brain continued to swell today, and Ira Clark, assistant hospital administrator, said, "Everything known to neurosurgeons has been done in an attempt to save her."

Violante's condition was improved today.

Clark said he was "alert, lucid, stable and talking," and had spent some time with his parents this morning.

The bullet which struck Violante entered the left temple, "completely shattered" the left eye and exited above the right eyebrow. His left eye was removed and Clark said that while the right eye could distinguish lightness from dark, it would be some time before doctors knew how much — if any — sight he would retain.

Police reported they were swamped with calls today regarding the case. "Everybody knows the killer," a police spokesman said.

Police said several prime suspects had been under surveillance this weekend but that all were accounted for when the Brooklyn shooting occurred.

"It's like looking for a needle in a haystack," a police official said, "except when you look through a haystack, you

A Charleston man Lester Brewing Cannon Jr., 22, was injured in a car-truck accident at 4:08 p.m. Sunday on Highway 62 about 150 feet east of the exit ramp of Interstate 55.

Cannon's eastbound car slid under the trailer of a westbound tractor-trailer truck, driven by Dennis Arthur Prince, 27, of Strawberry Point, Iowa, as the truck was pulling onto Highway 62 from a service station drive. The top of the car was torn off in the collision, which occurred on a rain-slick road. The car was reportedly traveling at a high rate of speed.

Mileage standards through 1985 get committee approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — As the House prepared to begin a week of debate on President Carter's energy plan, a Senate committee voted today to set minimum mileage standards through 1985 as a means of discouraging production of gasguzzling cars.

The Senate Energy Committee also voted as part of its consideration of the Carter energy proposals to double the penalties for auto companies which fail to meet existing mileage standards.

American auto manufacturers now must meet an average for gasoline mileage covering all models they produce. A 1975 law sets that average at 18 miles per gallon for 1978 models, climbing to 27.5 miles per gallon in 1985.

A proposal by Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, approved 10 to 6 by the committee, would set a mileage floor. The minimum would begin at 16 miles per gallon for 1980 models and rise to 21 miles per gallon in 1985.

The move was opposed vigorously by the big three American auto makers. Chrysler said it might have trouble with one of its 1980 models if the proposal became law. A Ford official said none of its cars planned for 1980 through 1985 would fall below the minimum set in the Metzenbaum proposal.

Nonetheless, Ford official Fred G. Secrest said there is a danger that a car model might fall below the minimum by a "trivial percentage."

"We might face, therefore, the sudden necessity of closing plants that produce certain models or components, even though our over-all fleet-average efficiency was better than mandated goals."

In the House, meanwhile, the President's energy proposals appeared likely to survive unscathed during four days of scheduled debate and votes.

Also expected to be hotly debated is a four cent increase in federal gasoline excise taxes, which was approved by the House Ad Hoc Energy Committee. The proceeds from the added tax would go in part to mass transit projects.

Another version to be voted on would increase the present four cent tax by five cents with half the proceeds going to mass transit and the rest to the states for upgrading highways other than those in the Interstate system.

Chaffee, Jeff City decide it today

SCOREBOARD

CARTHAGE, Mo. — A 10:00 a.m. battle with Jefferson City this morning was to decide the fate of Chaffee's Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars in the state tournament at Carthage. A heart-breaking 7-6 loss to the defending state champions in Sunday's game gave Chaffee their first loss of the tournament and forced the final game this morning.

Jefferson City, which had defeated Sikeston 4-0 in the loser's bracket finals in a game suspended by rain Saturday night and completed Sunday afternoon, came up with three runs in the bottom of the seventh to offset a five-run rally by Chaffee in the top of the inning and grab a 7-6 decision that kept alive their hopes of repeating as Missouri's top 16-18 Babe Ruth unit.

Chaffee brought in mound ace Scott Wachter to work the seventh and try to nail down the city's second Senior Babe Ruth state crown in three years, but saw victory slip away from him twice in the nightmarish inning.

A walk by Mack to lead off the seventh for Jefferson City chased Chaffee starter Jim Evans from the box. Wachter came on and gave up a single to Schenewerk to put two on. Brumley hit into a forceout at second for the first out, and a disputed call at first on an attempted double play kept Chaffee from ending the game there. Second baseman Rex Meyer bobbled Heckman's grounder that would have sent everybody home for an error that scored and run, and Wachter was within a pitch of a strikeout before Hartman singled to tie the game. Wachter got Mankin to fly to right, but Evans, who had moved to right field after leaving the mound, dropped the ball to allow the winning run to score.

Both teams scored single runs in the fourth to break the tie, and three runs by Jeff City in the bottom of the sixth made it 4-1, setting up Chaffee's rally in the seventh.

Chaffee outthrew Jefferson City 14-11 in their unsuccessful bid to end the tournament and received three walks, but stranded twelve runners.

David Duncan started the game on the mound for Chaffee, but was chased by Jefferson City's outburst in the sixth. Mickey Eftink and Evans followed to the mound in rapid succession before Wachter came on in the seventh.

Punchless All-Stars bow out of state tournament

CARTHAGE, Mo. — The Weatherman kept Sikeston in the running for the Senior Babe Ruth State championship for an extra 18 hours over the weekend, but the All-Stars' anemic hitting attack kept them from helping themselves as much as the elements had done.

Saturday night's game against Jefferson City in the loser's bracket finals of the state tournament was postponed until Sunday afternoon because of rain that fell upon Carthage. But the postponement only prolonged the agony of defeat for the Sikeston club as they bowed 4-0 in the completed game to the defending state champions.

Sikeston managed only three hits off Jefferson City hurler Sapp as they lost their chance for a rematch against Chaffee in the finals. Chaffee had beaten Sikeston 5-4 Thursday in Sikeston's first game of the tournament.

Sapp struck out twelve Sikeston hitters en route to his route-going shutout. Sapp faced only three hitters in five of the seven innings and was in real trouble only once. A double by Dewayne Barnett with one out in the fourth and a pair of walks gave Sikeston a bases loaded-out threat. But Sapp came back to strike out the next two batters to end the inning.

Sikeston starter Don Francis fanned eight Jeff City hitters of his own, but lack of control chased him from the mound in the sixth. Francis was charged with three of the four Jefferson City runs, while reliever Roger Cloud was touched for a walk and a triple in two-thirds of an inning.

After threatening in the first against Francis, Jeff City broke through in the second. Schenewerk walked and Fitzpatrick doubled him to third. Catcher Deayne Barnett picked Schenewerk off third, but Hartman came through with a single to score Fitzpatrick and make it 1-0.

Jefferson City made it 2-0 in the fourth. Another leadoff walk—this one to Fitzpatrick—came back to haunt the Sikeston right-hander. After Francis fanned Hartman, Sapp sacrificed. Mike Dewitt booted Mankin's grounder to short that would have ended the inning, allowing Fitzpatrick to score.

In the sixth, Fitzpatrick drew another walk, this one with one out. Two wild pitches later, Cloud took over for Francis and yielded a sacrifice fly by Hartman. Cloud walked pinch hitter Bix, and Mankin drilled a triple that made it 4-0.

Capilla, Reds back in gear after 6-2 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — After a July dive that plummeted them 14 games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West, the Cincinnati Reds are trying to pick up the pieces of a disappointing season.

"The last two weeks have been the most frustrating we've ever had. We've been playing decent but every day something else happens. Now it's to the point where we may have played ourselves right out of it," said superstar catcher Johnny Bench, in his eleventh season with the Reds.

Helped by Joe Morgan's four hits, including his 15th home run, the Reds Sunday defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-2, to end July with an 11-18 record, the team's worst month since 1966.

"Sure it's frustrating," Bench said. "You don't know which way to go. It's like banging your head against a wall."

Red hopes for a third straight World Championship were left somewhere in a disastrous streak of 12 losses in 14 games that began July 16.

"The Dodgers are so far away we might as well not even think about them. They're at the North Pole and we're at the South Pole," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson.

"We shouldn't worry about them. I know they're not worrying about us," he said, adding, "We don't have no goals. We're just going to go out and play every night."

Morgan said the team's beleaguered pitching staff is improving.

"You watch us, with our hitting and as the pitching staff comes around, we're going to win 15 games in a row sometime," Morgan added, though, "I don't know if it'll do any good."

Cardinals Manager Vern Rapp, who quit as manager of the Reds' Indianapolis farm club in 1975 after being passed over for a Reds' coaching job, refused to gloat over his streaking team's five-of-seven record with the Reds over the past two weeks.

"I've got enough situations of my own to worry about. I'm not going to talk about the Reds," he said.

Doug Capilla, acquired June 15 from St. Louis for former Reds' malcontent Rawly Eastwick, fired six strong innings to even his record at 3-3, while Eastwick, relieving loser Bob Forsch, 13-5, was shelled for three runs in a brief stint.

The always-optimistic rookie lefthander said, "I don't care if we're 15 games out. With our personnel, we can still win it."

Asked about Capilla's abundant enthusiasm, Bench smiled and said, "I just laugh at him."

"Silence is the unbearable repartee."

Chaffee, Jeff City decide it today

SCOREBOARD

CARTHAGE, Mo. — A 10:00 a.m. battle with Jefferson City this morning was to decide the fate of Chaffee's Senior Babe Ruth All-Stars in the state tournament at Carthage. A heart-breaking 7-6 loss to the defending state champions in Sunday's game gave Chaffee their first loss of the tournament and forced the final game this morning.

Jefferson City, which had defeated Sikeston 4-0 in the loser's bracket finals in a game suspended by rain Saturday night and completed Sunday afternoon, came up with three runs in the bottom of the seventh to offset a five-run rally by Chaffee in the top of the inning and grab a 7-6 decision that kept alive their hopes of repeating as Missouri's top 16-18 Babe Ruth unit.

Chaffee brought in mound ace Scott Wachter to work the seventh and try to nail down the city's second Senior Babe Ruth state crown in three years, but saw victory slip away from them twice in the nightmarish inning.

A walk by Mack to lead off the seventh for Jefferson City chased Chaffee starter Jim Evans from the box. Wachter came on and gave up a single to Schenewerk to put two on. Brumley hit into a forceout at second for the first out, and a sispited call at first on an attempted double play kept Chaffee from ending the game there. Second baseman Rex Meyr bobbled Heckman's grounder that would have sent everybody home for an error that scored and run, and Wachter was within a pitch of a strikeout before Hartman singled to tie the game. Wachter got Mankin to fly to right, but Evans, who had moved to right field after leaving the mound, dropped the ball to allow the winning run to score.

Both teams scored single runs in the fourth to break the ice, and three runs by Jeff City in the bottom of the sixth made it 4-1, setting up Chaffee's rally in the seventh.

Chaffee outhit Jefferson City 14-11 in their unsuccessful bid to end the tournament and received three walks, but stranded twelve runners.

David Duncan started the game on the mound for Chaffee, but was chased by Jefferson City's outburst in the sixth. Mickey Eftink and Evans followed to the mound in rapid succession before Wachter came on in the seventh.

Punchless All-Stars bow out of state tournament

CARTHAGE, Mo. — The weatherman kept Sikeston in the running for the Senior Babe Ruth state championship for an extra 18 hours over the weekend, but the All-Stars anemic hitting attack kept them from helping themselves as much as the elements had done.

Saturday night's game against Jefferson City in the loser's bracket finals of the state tournament was postponed until Sunday afternoon because of rain that fell upon Carthage. But the postponement only prolonged the agony of defeat for the Sikeston club as they bowed 4-0 in the completed game to the defending state champions.

Sikeston managed only three hits off Jefferson City hurler Sapp as they lost their chance for a rematch against Chaffee in the finals. Chaffee had beaten Sikeston 5-4 Thursday in Sikeston's first game of the tournament.

Sapp struck out twelve Sikeston hitters en route to his route-going shutout. Sapp faced only three hitters in five of the seven innings and was in real trouble only once. A double by Dewayne Barnett with one out in the fourth and a pair of walks gave Sikeston a bases loaded-one out threat. But Sapp came back to strike out the next two batters to end the inning.

Sikeston starter Don Francis fanned eight Jeff City hitters of his own, but lack of control chased him from the mound in the sixth. Francis was charged with three of the four Jefferson City runs, while reliever Roger Cloud was touched for a walk and a triple in two-thirds of an inning.

After threatening in the first against Francis, Jeff City broke through in the second. Schenewerk walked and Fitzpatrick doubled him to third. Catcher Deayne Barnett picked Schenewerk off third, but Hartman came through with a single to score Fitzpatrick and make it 1-0.

Jefferson City made it 2-0 in the fourth. Another leadoff walk—the one to Fitzpatrick—came back to haunt the Sikeston right hander. After Francis fanned Hartman, Sapp sacrificed. Mike Dewitt booted Manken's grounder to short that would have ended the inning, allowing Fitzpatrick to score.

In the sixth, Fitzpatrick drew another walk, this one with one out. Two wild pitches later, Cloud took over for Francis and yielded a sacrifice fly by Hartman. Cloud walked pinch hitter Bix, and Manken drilled a triple that made it 4-0.

Capilla, Reds back in gear after 6-2 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — After a July drive that plummeted from 14 games behind the Los Angeles Dodgers in the National League West, the Cincinnati Reds are trying to pick up the pieces of a disappointing season.

"The last two weeks have been the most frustrating we've ever had. We've been playing decent but every day something else happens. Now it's to the point where we may have played ourselves right out of it," said superstar catcher Johnny Bench, in his eleventh season with the Reds.

Helped by Joe Morgan's four hits, including his 15th home run, the Reds Sunday defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 6-2, to end July with an 11-18 record, the team's worst month since 1966.

"Sure it's frustrating," Bench said. "You don't know which way to go. It's like banging your head against a wall."

Red hopes for a third straight World Championship were left somewhere in a disastrous streak of 12 losses in 14 games that began July 16.

"The Dodgers are so far away we might as well not even think about them. They're at the North Pole and we're at the South Pole," said Reds Manager Sparky Anderson.

"We shouldn't worry about them. I know they're not worrying about us," he said, adding, "We don't have no goals. We're just going to go out and play every night."

Morgan said the team's beleaguered pitching staff is improving.

"You watch us, with our hitting and as the pitching staff comes around, we're going to win 15 games in a row sometime."

Morgan added, though, "I don't know if it'll do any good." Cardinals Manager Vern Rapp, who quit as manager of the Reds' Indianapolis farm club in 1975 after being passed over for a Reds' coaching job, refused to gloat over his streaking team's five-of-seven record with the Reds over the past two weeks.

"I've got enough situations of my own to worry about. I'm not going to talk about the Reds," he said.

Doug Capilla, acquired June 15 from St. Louis for former Reds' malcontent Rawly Eastwick, fired six strong innings to even his record at 3-3, while Eastwick, relieving loser Bob Forsch, 13-5, was shelved for three runs in a brief stint.

The always-optimistic rookie lefthander said, "I don't care if we're 15 games out. With our personnel, we can still win it."

Asked about Capilla's ambled enthusiasm, Bench smiled and said, "I just laugh at him."

Scott County beats Cape in district Legion play

SCOTT CITY — After the way Scott County lost the opener of Sunday's American Legion doubleheader at Scott City against Cape Girardeau, some of the Scott County players could be forgiven in they thought that Someone in a high position didn't want them to win.

Scott County had already scored twice in the bottom of the ninth to pull to within 7-6 of Cape and had the tying and winning runs on base with two out. But Rick Sippel of the Cape reached over the left field fence to snare Dennis Glueck's bid for a homer that would have clinched the district championship for Scott County. The catch gave Cape the 7-6 win.

But Scott County came back in the second game, scoring four runs in the bottom of the eighth to take a 10-8 victory over Cape to win the district championship series two games to one.

Scott County moves into inter-district play this Friday night. They meet Festus that night, then finish the series at Scott City Sunday. If necessary, two games will be played Sunday.

Scott County had beaten Poplar Bluff 3-0 Friday night to earn the right to play Cape two-out-of-three in the finals.

Scott County used their long-ball offense to crush the Cape squad Saturday night 10-1 in the cozy confines of Capaha Park at Cape. Dale Deal ripped two homers and Russell Deal and Mike Brock hit one each to back Davie Robert's four-hitter as they took a 1-0 lead in the series.

In Saturday night's first game, Cape jumped out on top with four in the first against Gary Springs and added single runs in the third, sixth and eighth innings. One in the fifth and three in the seventh helped Scott County get back into the game, and they had two in the ninth before Sippel robbed Glueck of the homer that would have completed Scott County's comeback.

In the rubber game of the series, Cape pounded out 15 hits to only eight for Scott County, but came up on the short end of the score. Big innings by the hosts in the second and the eighth made the difference.

After Cape had gone ahead 2-0 in the top of the second, Keith Boeller walked the bases full in the bottom of the frame. Chris Torbett's single drove in a run, and after a force out at the plate, the tying run scored when Cape elected to go for the man at the plate on Dale Deal's grounder and missed the runner. Lindy Duncan walked to force in a run before Russell Deal chased home two more with a bashed.

Cape scored single runs in the fourth and fifth to pull to within a run at 5-4, but James Berry's solo homer in the seventh gave Scott County a two-run lead again.

In the top of the eighth, doubles by Mick Fahringer and Rick Dohogne started a four-run rally that put Cape ahead. Blake Miller singled home Dohogne to tie the game, and Snow's fly to right was misplayed, putting two on again. After Sippel fanned, Osburne singled to score two more and put Cape on top 8-6.

But Scott Hinkebein singled to lead off the bottom of the eighth for Scott County. Gary Springs doubled to put runners on second and third, but both had to hold on Dale Deal's grounder to short. Miller wasn't surehanded on Lindy Duncan's grounder, booting the ball for an error that allowed Hinkebein to score. Russell Deal then put Scott County ahead, clouting a double that chased home a pair. Glueck fanned for he second out, but Fahringer kicked Berry's smash to third to allow the fourth run in the inning.

Cape didn't threaten in the top of the ninth as winner Hinkebein set them down in order.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Henry Bellmon, R-Okla., and a leading consumer advocate both say they appreciate farmers, but they differ in their views of food prices and large-scale agriculture.

Bellmon, appearing at a National Town Meeting here on Wednesday, said, "Factory workers are getting a better deal now on food than they've ever had in the history of the country."

Using Agriculture Department figures, Bellmon said families paid an average of 24.6 per cent of their take-home pay for food in 1947-49. He said the share declined to 18.4 per cent in 1964 and to 16.8 per cent last year.

Kathleen F. O'Reilly, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, and another speaker at the meeting, said the figures used by Bellmon were misleading.

"You have to be earning $20,000 a year or more to have it only be 12 or 16 per cent of your income," she said. "So for senior citizens, for low-income consumers it reaches up to 40 and 50 per cent ... and that is intolerable."

Ms. O'Reilly, who prefers that designation, complained about large agribusiness firms and others who collect large government payments under price support programs.

She quoted figures by the Congressional Budget Office showing that the top 4 per cent of the nation's farms having annual sales of crops and livestock of $100,000 or more would get 50 per cent of the direct income-supplement payments provided by farm legislation pending in Congress.

But Bellmon said that "this business about agribusiness getting all the benefits from our farm laws is a bunch of hogwash."

"There's a lot of them that lose $100,000 a year, but when you talk about gross (income or farm receipts) that doesn't mean a thing," Bellmon said. "We have to talk about net (income), and farmers generally in this country are losing money."

Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland, who also was on the panel, was not involved directly in the exchanges between Bellmon and Ms. O'Reilly, but he was asked about the impact of superfoods and the trend of farms getting bigger.

"We're looking into the question to see whether that trend is in the national interest," Bergland said.

If studies which have just been initiated by Agriculture Department show that the trend to superfoods may destroy the "family farm backbone" of the country, then something will have to be done, Bergland said.

"If we were to have a large, state agriculture that is found in some parts of the world and we find that that destroys the incentive which we now have, our judgment is that we ought to take action to block that trend to large-scale farming," Bergland said.

"It is safe to say, however, that if we do move with federal laws to outlaw large farms the cost to the consumer will increase," he said.

Bellmon, on the same subject, said that there "are very few large farms" operating today which are owned by big businesses and nonfarm stockholders, although some commodities have large investments by such companies.

For the most part, agriculture in this country is still in the hands of the family farmer and probably always will be because they are the most efficient," Bellmon said.

know what the needle looks like." "We had 2,000 cops out looking for Sam this weekend," a member of the special task force investigating the shootings said. "We thought for sure he'd strike in Queens or the Bronx but all the publicity must have driven him into Brooklyn."

Mayor Abraham Beame ordered the assignment of 100 more policemen to the 70-man task force and promised Police Commissioner Michael Codd, "If you need still more men you'll have them."

Friday marked one year since the 44-caliber killer's first attack, when 19-year-old Donna Laurie died. The killer became known as Son of Sam following the April 17 fatal shooting of a man and woman as they sat in their car in the Bronx. A note attached to the car's steering wheel was signed, "Son of Sam."

His toll is now eight attacks, four women and one man dead, five women and three men wounded. In one of two handprinted notes left by the killer, he hinted he would kill again near the July 29 anniversary of his gruesome debut.

Starting on that anniversary, and all through the weekend, police had concentrated heavy patrols in Queens and the Bronx, neighborhoods where the Son of Sam had struck. But it was in the Bensonhurst section of Brooklyn, shortly before 3 a.m., that the killer spotted the young couple.

Violante, in his father's brown Buick, had promised his father he would avoid Queens. According to Chief of Detectives John Keenan, a witness parked with his girlfriend nearby "saw a man approach the car, crouch down, fire four shots and turn and walk away."

Letter to the Editor:
Yep! He Is My Brother

When I was a small child, people used to say, Ruthie, is Red Kirby your brother? And I would smile with a proud look of adoration and say, Yep! He is my brother. We were the only two in the Kirby family with pretty red hair, and somehow that always made us just a little special to each other. He was always more than just a brother to all of us, even when Pop Kirby was alive we still looked up to Red and somehow asked his advice about things, and every thing seemed much better; after we talked to Red. Red was always home on Christmas, and was Santa Claus to my sis, Lillian and me. Every Christmas morning when we got up, Red was there, stockings full of goodies and things he had got for Lillian and me, yes he was a wonderful person even then, he always looked out for all of us.

The years passed, we grew up and he always was there, ready when he was needed. I had to leave Sikeston on account of my health. Clay Jr. was almost a year old. Red, Dolly, Mom and Pop Kirby wanted Clay Sr. and me to leave Clay Jr. there with them because we really did not know what would happen to me and what lay ahead for us in the big state of Arizona. We knew they would be good to him and raise him the way that was right, if anything happened to me. But Clay's Daddy and I could not go off and leave our little boy. So off we went to Arizona. Things were rough for us, but Red always helped in anyway he could, like calling and giving us money and always saying, sis everything, I'm sure will be alright, which in time it was, but my brother was always reassuring us things would turn out right, and I knew in my heart it would, because my brother said it would.

When Clay Sr. passed away, Red came right out to Arizona, even though at the time, Dolly, his wife, was in the hospital. Yes, that was my brother. He did not have a selfish bone in his body, he always was thinking about some one else and what he could do to help them. He never forgot my birthday or Christmas, I always received cards from him and always there was a surprise inside, but what hurts so bad now is, I will never get another card or a call from him, but all these years I have kept the cards he sent. And money could not buy them from me, that is all I have left of him and the wonderful memories. I could not come home when he passed away, but I know he did understand. But somehow I always thought he would be around.

That is what crushes my heart, to know he is gone. Red always wrote something about God in his letters to me, he always said to me "Sis, be a good girl and go to church and read your Bible and pray, and remember I love you all so very much, and I know he did love all of us."

So, you see that is why when someone says, is that Red Kirby your brother, that same old answer, Yep! That is my brother. And somehow I wish every one in all the world could have a BIG BROTHER like him. And when my days are over and I can face my God, when he says to me, Ruthie, do you know who this BIG MAN is on my right side? I will smile and say, Yes God, He is my Brother.

His Sis,
Ruth Kirby Taylor

Inasmuch as the United States government through the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has seen fit to take action which we believe to be a breach of faith to some 12,000 citizens of southeast Missouri and inasmuch as our company and our employees are included in this group, we make this statement of appeal.

We refer to the situation concerning Missouri Health and Medical Organization - This organization having been the carrier of the health and medical insurance for our employee group for the past two years.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare started a program that made possible the formation of organizations to insure hospital and medical care.

The Missouri Health and Medical Organization was set up on the basis of the HEW program.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare made a three year grant to be paid in annual installments to Missouri Health and Medical Organization. This grant was for the purpose of paying the deficiencies which were projected to occur in the first three years.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare allowed their name to be used in the solicitation of business by the Missouri Health and Medical Organization.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare arranged for actuaries to establish the rates which were charged.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare laid down guidelines for operation which have been followed.

Our company was carrying and paying for hospitalization for our employee group when the HEW backed organization solicited our business. We did not seek them out; they sought us.

Our company was carrying and paying for hospitalization for our employee group when the HEW backed organization solicited our business. We did not seek them out; they sought us.

The HEW commitment plus the fact that the Missouri Department of Insurance had granted a charter were, we thought, evidence of financial responsibility.

The employees of our company over a period of several months have incurred medical bills of approximately $20,000 which are unpaid. We paid premiums for insurance for the corresponding period of time.

We think HEW is responsible and demand that they make good on their commitment.

HEW has now repudiated their commitment after only two years, thus leaving a large number of unpaid bills incurred by policyholders who paid for insurance during the period in which the bills were incurred.

The HEW action leaves almost 12,000 persons without health care insurance.

We do not contest the right of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to end its program.

We do, however, contest their right to refuse the funding necessary to pay the bills incurred before their notice of termination. Premiums were paid for insurance during this period and participants are entitled to payment of all bills incurred during the period.

There is an interesting side light which concerns the termination of this grant. We understand that some two or three days prior to the notification of termination by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to the Missouri Health and Medical Organization, a prominent health insurance company had concentrated a sizeable force of agents in Dexter and that these agents were soliciting policyholders of the Missouri Health and Medical Organization throughout the bootheel.

How and from whom was the information behind this action obtained?

Is it possible someone was paid for helping this company to pick up a premium volume of between one and two million dollars annually? We think a little investigating is in order.

We intend to pursue this matter in the interest of obtaining justice and invite all other parties who are victims in this matter to join with us.

In viewing T.V. contest shows, one usually hears contestants asked, "Where are you from?" Invariably, you sense a pride in the person's reply when the town is mentioned. The contestants are mostly ordinary people; no spellbinder, no do-gooder, no politician. It is this sort of civic loyalty and pride that has helped America become big and strong ... and envied.

In our American way of life, we take many things for granted - including our home town. Maybe once in a while we ought to adopt and dedicate ourselves to a personal creed, somewhat along these lines -

"This is my home town. My home is here. My business or work is here. It is where my vote is cast; where my children are educated; where my neighbors dwell; where my life is centered. My town is entitled to my citizenship; not my partisanship. It is entitled to my friendship, not my dissensions; my sympathy, not my indifference. It supplies me with protection, trade, friends, education, friendly and reliable merchants, schools and churches. It has done some things better than others. The best things I should seek to make better, the worst things I should help to suppress. My town supports me. My town, including the merchants that help support my town, are entitled in turn to my support and loyalty."

The contestants are mostly ordinary people; no spellbinder, no do-gooder, no politician. It is this sort of civic loyalty and pride that has helped America become big and strong ... and envied. In our American way of life, we take many things for granted - including our home town. Maybe once in a while we ought to adopt and dedicate ourselves to a personal creed, somewhat along these lines -

"This is my home town. My home is here. My business or work is here. It is where my vote is cast; where my children are educated; where my neighbors dwell; where my life is centered. My town is entitled to my citizenship; not my partisanship. It is entitled to my friendship, not my dissensions; my sympathy, not my indifference. It supplies me with protection, trade, friends, education, friendly and reliable merchants, schools and churches. It has done some things better than others. The best things I should seek to make better, the worst things I should help to suppress. My town supports me. My town, including the merchants that help support my town, are entitled in turn to my support and loyalty."

DEAR POLLY — When I make up my list before going grocery shopping I make it out on one side of a piece of paper. On the other side, I list the things I have at home that should be used, as well as the ingredients on hand for things I am planning to make. This way I never get to the store and then wonder if I have forgotten to put something on my list and end up buying a lot of extras. I can always turn the list over and check. — IRENE.

Ann Landers

Drug use alarms teacher

Dear Ann Landers: I am a teacher in a junior high who must work 12 months a year to make financial ends meet. So here I am in summer school teaching eighth graders and learning plenty.

I am not exactly ancient (turned 35 last week) but sometimes I think I'm living in a different world from the one I grew up in. The 13- and 14-year-olds I see scare the living daylights out of me. Many smoke pot and I'm sure at least a dozen students in my classes have been experimenting with harder drugs.

In 1967 you wrote an effective answer to a young drug abuser. I clipped it out to read to my students and have done so many times since. Although that column is now ten years old your basic philosophy still applies. Will you please rerun it? Thank you, Ann — Long Island, N.Y.

Dear L.L.: Thanks for the compliment. Here's the column — September 10, 1967.

Dear Ann Landers: I am getting fed up with your attacks on drug users. You give the impression that anyone who takes drugs is mentally unbalanced. This is a Fascist lie.

Drug users are the only sane people left in this crazy world. I am a speed freak and I challenge anyone to prove I am mentally sick. I AM sick, however, of war, conflict between black and white, sick of seeing poor people living in hovels that aren't fit for pigs. I am also sick of crooked politicians, filthy water and polluted air. The only way a person can keep from cracking up is to get stoned or spaced out.

People say the youth of our country are rebelling. Well, who can blame us? We are crating our own world because we can't live in your world of war, racial strife, phony politicians, poverty and pollution. Anyone who can tolerate what is going on has got to be crazy. — Dr. Love

Dear Dr. Love: I, too, am sick of war, conflict between white and black, shameful housing for the poor, phony politicians, filthy water and polluted air. But I'm hanging in there — without drugs, thank you — trying to keep it all together, attempting to cope with life's problems and hopefully looking for solutions.

Unfortunately, the world you escape to is a private world, imaginary and temporary. It is only a place to visit. You can't live there. It takes guts to keep your head on straight, to fight ignorance, prejudice and injustice. But it's the only chance the good guys have to win. President John F. Kennedy said, "The most valuable natural resource of any nation is its young people." If the youth of our country opts to cop out (and drugs ARE a copout) we are finished as a nation. The next twenty years will see a crisis in world history. You and your contemporaries will be in leadership positions. We cannot meet the challenge of the future with a generation of fried brains. — Ann Landers

CONFIDENTIAL To Find It If You Can: I did find it — and it's worth repeating. Thomas

Murphy, Chairman of the Board of General Motors, said, "Success is now sufficient evidence to invite scrutiny by the government to determine how success can be remedied" — as if it were a disease. To win is to lose, and the losers are not just the companies found 'guilty' of success. The real losers are the consumers."

Teaching your kids about the facts of life can be easy or awkward. Ann Landers's new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex" can spell the difference. Homemakers conference involves many workshops

NEW MADRID — Four members of the New Madrid County Homemakers Council recently returned from the National Extension Homemakers Conference which was headquartered in the Hearnes Building on the University of Missouri campus, Columbia. This group met in the various University auditoriums on campus for their workshops led by instructors on a national level.

Mrs. Stanley, president of the council, reviewed highlights of the national and state meeting. In the Missouri business meeting, Mrs. Don Cain of Essex, was elected president-elect for the incoming year. The stage was decorated with a white replica of the St. Louis

Arch, the Missouri Seal and the 1977 slogan of University Extension Homemakers Club, "Gateway to New Frontiers." The 41 state presidents attending were escorted to the stage where they placed their state flags on display along with the American, Missouri and National Extension Homemakers Council flag during the meeting.

Mrs. Betty Gunther reported on the Family Life Workshop, stressing utilizing woman power and helping the deaf, paralyzed and blind.

Rebecca Nistendirk gave a resume of the Citizenship Workshop, stressing energy and environment. She said it's possible we will enter into the solar program for heating in winter and cooling in summer. A real need for estate planning, was also discussed.

Mrs. Stanley summarized from the Health Workshop stating that one of every four persons will have some form of cancer. She repeated a suggestion that every one take their own prescribed medicine or destroy it.

Mrs. Alice Hill reported on Cultural Art Workshop which stressed murals, drama and music as necessary for a complete life.

Mrs. Stanley presented Mrs. Hill a certificate for having won first place in Missouri on her International Affairs Report from the county.

Georgia grandmother wins national cooking contest

A grandmother from Georgia, using a quick stir-fry method, cooked chicken with vegetables to win the $10,000 top prize in the 1977 National Chicken Cooking Contest.

Mrs. Ann Costa of Atlanta prepared Chicken Rataouille to win over 50 other contestants in the annual event held Wednesday in Jackson, MI.

Placing second and winning $4,000 was Dr. Linda Louise Walsh, a psychology professor from Cedar Falls, Iowa. Her recipe for Chicken in Tomato-Wine Sauce won the approval of a panel of national food experts who served as judges.

Other winners, sharing a total of $20,000 in prizes, were: Mrs. Jane K. Matsumoto of Honolulu, Hawaii, who placed third and won $3,000 for her recipe for Sesame Seed Chicken Wings; Mrs. Woni Fournier of Lincoln, NE, fourth prize of $2,000 for Sesame Chicken a la Fournier; and Robert "Buck" Collier of San Manuel, AZ, fifth, $1,000 for Chicken Barbecue Bueno.

The contest, one of the nation's oldest cooking competitions, is sponsored by the National Broiler Council and the makers of A-c'ent flavor enhancer and the makers of Mazola corn oil. Ranges for the contest were furnished by White-Westinghouse. This year's hosts were members of the Mississippi Poultry Association.

Ann Costa, 52, is the wife of Michael Costa, president of an office supply firm. They have a daughter and a son and a two-year old grandson. She said she first made her winning recipe by combining her favorite vegetable ratatouille with chicken.

Linda Walsh, whose husband, James, is an attorney, has a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago and now teaches at the University of Northern Iowa. She classifies winning the chicken cook-off in her state and placing second in the national competition among other memorable events in her life.

The third place winner, Jane Matsumoto, has a masters degree from the University of Hawaii. She and her husband, Herbert, are both school teachers and they are parents of two grown sons. She collects recipes and is modest about admitting that she's a good cook.

A native of South Korea, Woni Fournier, fourth place winner, is married to a sales representative and has three young daughters. She likes to cook and sew and her prize-winning recipe for Sesame Chicken a la Fournier came with her from her homeland.

Russian men suffer after wives' freedom

MOSCOW (AP) — The liberation of Russian women is proving to be difficult for some men, who feel like failures around their successful wives, a Soviet journal says.

More than half the Soviet Union's workers now are women. As women take responsible jobs and sometimes earn more than their husbands, "some men begin to develop a guilt complex, to think they are failures," a commentator said in a recent issue of the weekly Nedelya.

"For them these are very destructive attitudes. In order to preserve their achieved living standard, some highly paid wives even attempt to 'adapt' their more poorly paid husbands to the role of children's nursemaid," the journal said.

Some social theorists suggest men should do more housework and child rearing. But Nedelya said men are not cut out for such work.

"The title of family breadwinner — an honorable and responsible title — has always helped the man to realize his significance, his necessity to the people closest to him," Nedelya said. "Without this role, the ground really slips away from under him."

A survey quoted by Nedelya indicated 73 per cent of men contacted in Leningrad recognized the financial necessity of having their wives work, but two-thirds would have preferred the women to stay home.

Woman are moving into important management positions in the Soviet Union but some sex barriers remain. For example, women are still not favored for jobs involving heavy manual labor.

The Soviets like to point out that 31 per cent of the nation's parliament is made up of women. But the parliament has little power and the 20 members and alternates of the ruling Communist party Politburo are all men.

The growing role of women in society is creating other problems.

With men unwilling to take over household chores, women are working harder than ever — spending an average of four or five hours on housework and child care each day in addition to as much as eight hours on the job, according to published figures.

Women's increased responsibilities and a serious shortage of living space also have helped cause a trend toward smaller families at a time when the Soviet Union is trying to boost its birthrate.

The changing roles of women and men are contributing to a rising divorce rate, demographers say. The latest handbook of Soviet statistics shows three divorces for every 10 marriages in 1975.

Meanwhile, Soviet men complain liberated women are losing their femininity.

A recent article in the Literary Gazette collected some of these complaints. As the review put it, "Men are getting fed up with crude women who have the manners of cowboys."

Grocery prices show moderate increases

Grocery prices continued to increase at a relatively moderate level during July, although there were scattered sharp boosts for a variety of items, an Associated Press survey shows.

Among the products most frequently rising in price were frozen orange juice concentrate, tomato sauce, milk and frankfurters. Decreases were spotted in the price of chopped chuck, pork chops and eggs.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 commonly purchased food and nonfood items, checked the price at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and has rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month.

Highlights of the latest survey were:

—The marketbasket total at the checklist store increased during July in five cities, up an average 2.2 per cent, and decreased in eight cities, down an average .9 per cent. The biggest increases — just over 4 per cent in Providence, R.I., and Salt Lake City — occurred because items that had been on sale at the start of July were at regular price levels in the current survey.

On an overall basis, the bill at the end of July was about a third of a per cent higher than it was a month earlier. The rate of overall increase was the same as it was during June, when the marketbasket was higher at the checklist store in nine cities and lower in four.

—Comparing prices at the start of August with those seven months earlier, the AP found the marketbasket total was higher in every city, up at average of 9.4 per cent. When coffee was removed from the totals, however, the increase was only 2.7 per cent.

—Coffee prices took a dip last month, decreasing at the checklist store in six cities, generally about 20 cents a pound. Coffee now is between $3.50 and $4 a pound in most cities. The drops reflect cuts at the wholesale level which, in turn, mirror decreases in the cost of coffee beans. The decrease has been credited partly to a drop in consumption among shoppers who rebelled at high prices.

—Orange juice increased in more places than any other single item during July, rising at the checklist store in eight cities. There have been predictions of higher prices ever since the winter freeze which hurt the Florida citrus crop.

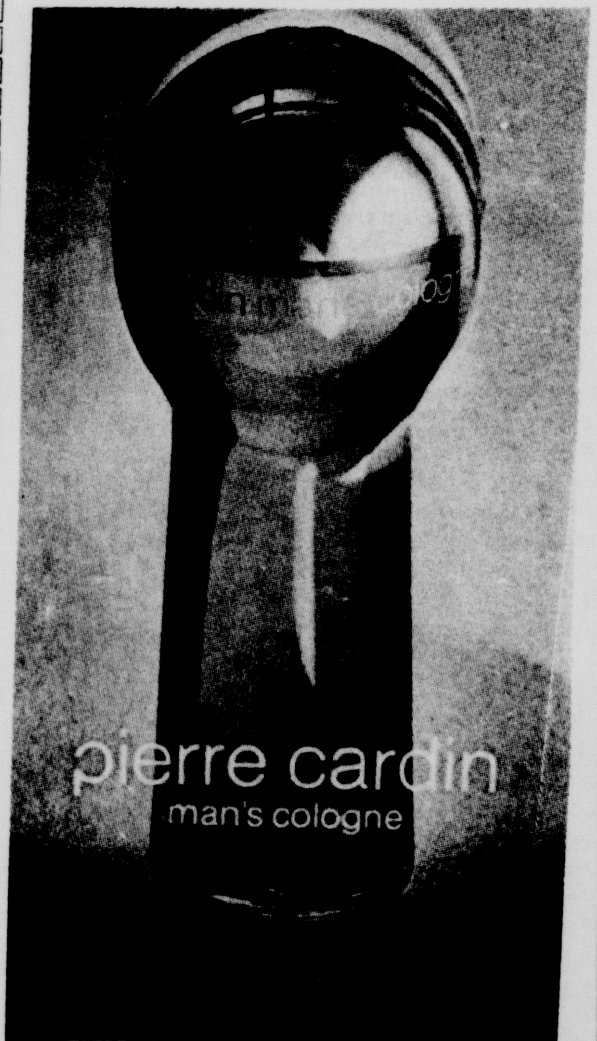

—As usual, food products accounted for more of the fluctuations than nonfood items. Nonfoods represented 20 per cent of the total number of items, but only 16 per cent of the ups and downs.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M., Atlanta, Ga., Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Los Angeles, Miami, New York, Philadelphia, Providence, Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Cookbooks, along with Bibles, were among the earliest books printed, and they still outsell any other kind of book.

Pierre Cardin decided it takes more than clothes to make the man.

PIPES ACROSS THE BORDER

It looks as though Canada and the United States are about to link pipes, as it were, in one of the most extensive construction projects ever undertaken.

The National Energy Board of Canada has approved an application by three Canadian companies and an American company to pipe natural gas from Prudhoe Bay in Alaska across three Canadian provinces to the American Midwest and West Coast.

This should be good news to thousands of commercial and residential gas customers in the Great Lakes states, who've been shivering in their boots during cold-weather fuel shortages.

It also should be good news to John G. McMillan, the Salt Lake City pipeline operator whose proposal to lay pipe along the Alcan Highway once was considered a long shot but now has strong backing in both Washington and Ottawa.

Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is expected to endorse the Alcan route over a competing proposal to build the pipeline across the Arctic National Wildlife Range. And it now seems likely President Carter will recommend the Alcan route to Congress by Sept. 1.

The Alcan route is favored by most environmentalists for the very good reason that it follows existing roads or pipelines over much of its 2,800-mile journey from Prudhoe Bay to the U.S. border.

It makes more sense, certainly, to pipe the gas across Canada than to go through the expensive, wasteful and risky process of liquefying it and shipping it down the West Coast by tanker.

PREPAID HEALTH CARE

Let's hope the Carter administration has more success than its predecessors in trying to stimulate the growth of prepaid health care in the United States.

At one time, prepaid medicine — patterned after the Kaiser Plan in California — was thought to be the wave of the future. Families would pay a fixed monthly fee for all their health care, ranging from routine checkups to expensive surgery. Doctors, druggists and hospitals would band together to provide that care at the lowest possible cost.

President Nixon predicted in 1971 that federal seed money would enable as many as 40 million Americans to enroll in these so-called health maintenance organizations (HMOs) by 1976.

As it turned out, this didn't happen. Only 6.5 million are enrolled in HMO's, and the federal aid program is bogged down in bureaucratic red tape.

Carter's health planners, aided by some 1976 changes in the law, now say they're determined to get the HMO program back on the track. Which is good news if they can do it.

For it seems that prepaid medicine tends to hold down health care costs in the long run. Because doctors get their money in a salary instead of a fee for each service, there is just as much emphasis on keeping patients healthy as on treating them when they're sick.

One study found, for example, that federal workers enrolled in regular health insurance plans spent nearly twice as many days in hospitals as federal workers in HMO plans whose medical fees had been paid in advance.

ELBOW, ANYONE?

Now that yellow fever and polio have been conquered, we are indebted to Dr. Willbald Nagler of New York City for telling us how to eradicate tennis elbow.

One small trouble with Dr. Nagler's advice — put forth in a publication called American Family Physician — is that some of us may not be quite up to carrying it out.

Dr. Nagler suggests that weak-armed tennis players lift a 3-to-10-pound dumbbell off a table 15 times a day for six weeks, buy a lighter racket with a larger grip and use light tennis balls when possible.

But, even worse, the doctor also recommends that we save our sore elbows by hitting the ball where it's supposed to be hit — in the middle of the racket. And how many of us weekend contortionists are able to do that?

Inside Labor
By Victor Riesel

Jimmy's Crossroads: Inside Story of Carter's New Partnership with U.S. Labor Chiefs. WASHINGTON — The powerful labor movement is in trouble. It's hurting. It's losing members. Imports are slashing jobs. "Softness" in steel is forcing layoffs by the thousands. The young workers aren't joining. The big black working force is in angry rebellion.

Even the "movement's" inner establishment, the 4-million-member building and construction trades unions, is shaky, indeed.

This doesn't mean that labor's chief of chiefs, George Meany, the South Bronx version of Winston Churchill, is presiding over the liquidation of the union empire. But it does mean that the 82-year-old curmudgeon's successor may well do that.

That is unless the still heavily financed union coalition pushes through Congress H.R. 8410, the so-called Labor Law Reform bill, which will open the vast non-union sunbelt territory to thousands of labor organizing squads.

That's why the unions' central high command stamped the label "top priority" on the proposed "act." That's why it's pulling out all the stops.

And when a movement of 20 million members tells a President of the U.S. that it has a "top priority" for the first congressional session of his administration, the President is expected to come through, not only with a message to the Hill but with muscled support. And Jimmy Carter did.

Inside the White House many powerful Carter advisers tried to cut labor off at the pass. Office of Management and Budget Director Bert Lance warned "Jimmy" against backing labor's priority of priorities. But later he told top corporate executives, "I offered my advice and it was disregarded."

Many Cabinet members urged the President to stay out of the fight — which is make or break for labor — but he shunted them off. Doletfully one by one, except for Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, many of the Secretaries, in quiet private conversations, told the embattled Business Roundtable leaders that the President couldn't be budged.

That's what the White House "unknowns" (but not for long) also told the corporate leaders who came to the executive mansion. Domestic Council chief Stu Eizenstat offered them the points in the President's labor law reform message in advance. Eizenstat said ponder them, return with your objections, offer changes in the wording, but the decision is made. The President will back the labor leaders.

The industrialists' philosophical and legal technicians returned for conversations with Domestic Council associate director Bill Johnson. There was give and take. But not on the essentials. President Carter's decision was final.

Somewhere along the line he had to deliver something solid to the labor movement, which had thrown so much money, manpower and machinery into his election. Bluntly, he was in political hock to them. Without the best spies in the business along China's obscure southern borders.

"Not with my WACs," scoffed their leader. "My girls," she explained, tapping her temple, "have it up here."

These spies, some of them former Chinese Nationalists with excellent contacts in China, brought out valuable intelligence. The Air Force was also able to establish its own agents on the mainland. Through a devious payment system originating in Hong Kong and Taiwan, the Air Force was actually able to deliver payments to the agents inside China.

Footnote: We have cited only a few of the Air Force endeavors from intelligence reports that are full of unpublicized activities.

Cold Winter: It's going to cost Americans even more money to keep warm next winter. For the oil companies are quietly tightening the squeeze on the consumers.

For years, the oil oligarchies have sold excess heating oil during the hot summer months at a discount. This has permitted the oil distributors to store oil for the winter. The one per cent discount makes it economical for them to pay the storage costs.

But now the oil barons, acting in unison, have dropped the price reduction. Many oil suppliers can't afford to buy heating oil early without the cash discount. The result will be higher prices and tighter supplies after the weather turns cold.

Oil spokesmen said that increased costs are to blame for this latest price squeeze. But oil distributors claim that the suppliers are merely trying to jack up their profits. Rep. Alvin Baldus, D-Wis., has demanded a full explanation from the oil companies.

At a Democratic fund-raising brunch, House Majority Leader Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, Jr., told a story about "Blameless Jake" Bloom of Boston, who fed three generations of Irish, Jews and Italians on credit in his small variety store. In appreciation, his friends and neighbors sent him to London for a fling.

Inspired, Jake came home, slimmed down, capped his teeth, bought a hairpiece and hit Miami Beach. He met a beautiful blonde and, just then, was struck by a bolt of lightning. "God," Jake complained when he reached the Pearly Gates, "in the twilight of my years, I just wanted to have a little fun."

"Oh, it's you, Jake," said God. "I'm sorry—I didn't recognize you."

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Jimmy's Crossroads: Inside Story of Carter's New Partnership with U.S. Labor Chiefs

WASHINGTON — The powerful labor movement is in trouble. It's hurting. It's losing members. Imports are slashing jobs. "Softness" in steel is forcing layoffs by the thousands. The young workers aren't joining. The big black working force is in angry rebellion.

Even the "movement's" inner establishment, the 4-million-member building and construction trades unions, is shaky, indeed.

This doesn't mean that labor's chief of chiefs, George Meany, the South Bronx version of Winston Churchill, is presiding over the liquidation of the union empire. But it does mean that the 82-year-old curmudgeon's successor may well do that.

Financial union coalition pushes through Congress H.R. 8410, the so-called Labor Law Reform bill, which will open the vast non-union sunbelt territory to thousands of labor organizing squads.

That's why the unions' central high command stamped the label "top priority" on the proposed "act." That's why it's pulling out all the stops.

And when a movement of 20 million members tells a President of the U.S. that it has a "top priority" for the first congressional session of his administration, the President is expected to come through, not only with a message to the Hill but with muscled support. And Jimmy Carter did.

Inside the White House many powerful Carter advisers tried to cut labor off at the pass. Office of Management and Budget Director Bert Lance warned "Jimmy" against backing labor's priority of priorities. But later he told top corporate executives, "I offered my advice and it was disregarded."

Many Cabinet members urged the President to stay out of the fight — which is make or break for labor — but he shunted them off. Dolefully one by one, except for Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, many of the Secretaries, in quiet private conversations, told the embattled Business Roundtable leaders that the President couldn't be budged.

That's what the White House "unknowns" (but not for long) also told the corporate leaders who came to the executive mansion. Domestic Council chief Stu Eizenstat offered them the points in the President's labor law reform message in advance. Eizenstat said ponder them, return with your objections, offer changes in the wording, but the decision is made. The President will back the labor leaders.

The industrialists' philosophical and legal technicians returned for conversations with Domestic Council associate director Bill Johnson. There was give and take. But not on the essentials. President Carter's decision was final.

Somewhere along the line he had to deliver something solid to the labor movement, which had thrown so much money, manpower and machinery into his election. Bluntly, he was in political hock to them. Without them he would have lost heavily in key states during the primaries as well as in the final heat.

The proposed Labor Law Reform Act is tough. Much of it was prepared by Ray Marshall's Labor Department specialists, working with the labor movement's experts.

For example, for the first time, if the law passes, the National Labor Relations Board will have punitive powers with which to hit employers. In the act now, there is only remedial NLRB authority. And, the five-person board will be enlarged to seven. Jimmy Carter will, of course, name the new members. There is a section calling for double back pay to be paid by employers to workers in the corporation is hit by an unfair labor practice decision. This could cost individual companies scores of millions of dollars.

Basically the proposed law will speed NLRB processing and judgments on unionizing drives.

And not since the days when shoemakers were called cordwainers and Pullman cars were for sleeping instead of railroad exhibitions has American labor been in such desperate need of laws which would open the sunbelt and slow the forces of non-unionism.

Rarely, for example, have the usually imperturbable building and construction trade union chiefs been so disturbed.

The open shop movement is smashing at the construction trades like a typhoon in Taiwan. At least 40 per cent of all new construction now is non-union. Open shop. And virtually every state. Mind you the Building and Construction Trades Department is the AFL-CIO bedrock. Has been for years.

Further, the original political sophisticates in labor politics, the garment trades, are suffering. Ladies' Garment Workers' Union president Chick Chaikin tells me that the "American apparel community has lost several hundred thousand jobs because of foreign competition." A survey of Harvard Prof. John Dunlop for the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers union leaders Murray Finley and Jack Sheinkman, shows that a third of the American male's clothes closet is filled by foreign imports — which killed between 25,000 and 45,000 jobs in 1976. The aerospace industry is hurting — which means slashes in the big machinist and auto union work areas. Remember the late B-1 bomber?

That's the way it was laid on the line by Meany and his executive aides and colleagues. They had delivered to Jimmy Carter during campaign time. Now they wanted a quid for their quo. They got it. But they say it's not enough. They want Jimmy Carter to get his forces up the Hill and turn on the White House heat.

It will be quite a fight. Judging from the slow burn at the anti-Labor Law strategy conference of 400 industrial executives the morning of July 27 at the Capitol Hilton, they aren't going to chop up their Roundtable for firewood to save energy.

Jimmy Carter will have to break with one side or the other. This is the biggest story this side of the Jordan's West Bank.

Rejection of emission control plan retained

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Air Conservation Commission has upheld a decision to reject Texaco's proposed emissions controls for gasoline deliveries in the St. Louis area.

In accordance with state efforts to check emission of hydrocarbons in transporting gasoline, Texaco filed a plan with the Missouri Division of Natural Resources calling for a top-loading method for moving gasoline from bulk storage depots to filling stations.

The plan incorporated a recovery system to prevent release of vapor while gasoline is moved from the bulk storage tanks to the delivery trucks, then to the distributors.

On March 28, the division notified Texaco that it had determined the proposal was not adequate.

The company and the staff testified Tuesday on how fast and effectively the vapor recovery system could work. The Division of Natural Resources defended its decision and the commission upheld it.

Petroleum companies were required submit control plans by Feb. 1, 1977, be ready to construct any necessary facilities by Feb. 1, 1978, and be in compliance with minimum standards by July 1, 1978.

What's the law?

The case of the boiled tenant

By JACK STRAUSS, LL.B.

Dorothy decided to take a bath in anticipation of going out on a heavy date. She sat down in her tub and turned on the hot water -- but unexpectedly, the entire fixture came out of the tile and scalding water gushed out from an exposed hot water pipe, cascading over her shapely body as if she were a statue.

Instead of being wined and dined that night, Dorothy had to be dabbled and salvaged. She suffered very severe burns and she sued the owner of the apartment house where she lived for her injuries.

"As my landlord," Dorothy complained in court, "he had a duty to protect me from being attacked by his property."

"I had no reason to know that the hot water faucet had become defective," was the landlord's defense. "Even Dorothy didn't know it. Otherwise, she obviously wouldn't have risked taking a bath. Since the unexpected happens when you lease expect it, I can't be held responsible for what happened to Dorothy."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold Dorothy's landlord liable for her being boiled?

This is how the judge ruled: NO. The judge held that while a landlord has a basic duty to maintain his property and equipment in good repair, he cannot be held responsible for a latent defect that is not known to him or reasonably discoverable by him. In this case, concluded the judge, Dorothy's landlord had no way of knowing that the hot water faucet would blow out.

Florissant man wins $50,000
malpractice suit

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Florissant, Mo., man has been awarded $50,000 in a malpractice suit over the death of his wife following a hysterectomy operation in May 1973.

The award was made by a St. Louis Circuit Court jury Thursday to Donald Josar, husband of the late Patricia A. Josar.

The suit had been filed against Dr. Godofredo Herzog, who performed the operation, Christian Hospital Northwest and Dr. Kenneth Bruns, an anesthesiologist.

The hospital and Bruns, however, were dismissed from the action early in the case and the judgment in Judge Casey Walsh's court was against only Herzog.

The suit blamed the death of Mrs. Josar on the improper insertion of a catheter tube.

Abducted girl escapes after scary 3-state ride

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — A teen-age girl returned home with her parents Thursday, 24 hours after she was taken hostage at gunpoint on a harrowing ride through three states.

Lori A. Taylor, 18, was reported "physically okay but shook up," according to Walter Faustman, police chief at Chappell, Neb., where the 15-hour drama ended.

Paul Forsythe, 25, was arrested by Faustman after Miss Taylor escaped by going to a women's restroom at the Chappell Cafe, then out a back door and into the kitchen. A waitress ran to the police station next door and summoned police.

Forsythe was charged with kidnapping and aggravated robbery in warrants issued Wednesday in Wyandotte County District Court. He indicated he would waive extradition to Kansas and was expected to be returned today by Kansas City, Kan., police.

The ordeal began just after midnight when a man held up a Kansas City, Kan., restaurant and locked seven people in a cooler, then took Miss Taylor as a hostage. She said in the 575-mile ride that followed, her captor threatened her with death several times after first promising to set her free in western Kansas.

"I knew every time we stopped and he didn't let me go that he wasn't going to let me go," she said. The trip ran across Kansas along Interstate 70, then up Colorado backroads before reaching the Nebraska city. Miss Taylor said she was promised her freedom numerous times, and phoned her mother, Mrs. James R. Taylor, about 3 a.m. Wednesday that she would be released that afternoon.

Mrs. Taylor told her daughter to pray, then the man hung up the phone abruptly, she said. The mother told of prayer vigils by the family, friends and their church parish.

Miss Taylor told officers she drove some of the time, with the man holding a knife at her side. She said she drove over the speed limit in hopes of being stopped by officers, but added, jokingly, "They're never there when you want them."

When they reached western Kansas, where her captor first promised to free her, she said he began talking that she "knew too much" and he would have to kill her. He talked of driving on to Canada, and killing her in Montana.

She said she had him stop frequently at rest rooms, but he always watched them and she couldn't find other exits. That changed at the small western Nebraska city, just 10 miles from the Colorado border, when she found a second door in the women's restroom at the Chappell Cafe.

She slipped out, told a waitress of her plight, and was hidden while the waitress slipped out the back door and to the police station next door. Chief Faustman said Forsythe was sitting in the restaurant when he entered, apparently waiting for the girl.

Miss Taylor came home by flying from North Platte, Neb., to Omaha, where her parents had flown from Kansas City to take her home.

She had dinner with the family of Deuel County Sheriff Floyd Stahr before catching her flight to Omaha and praised them for their kindness.

Con Ed blamed for not moving to avert blackout

NEW YORK (AP) — Consolidated Edison, the giant utility servicing New York City and suburban Westchester County, was blamed by federal investigators Saturday for not taking proper steps to prevent the power failure which blacked out the area on the night of July 13-14.

According to published stories, a preliminary report by the Federal Power Commission said Con Edison was too dependent on links with upstate power sources and had faulty load-shedding devices.

The utility own preliminary explanation blamed "an act of God" — lightning striking its above-ground lines in Westchester. When load-shedding equipment went into action, Con Edison said, too much power was cut off, resulting in upsurges in remaining lines thereby causing them to fail.

BRANSON, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Air Conservation Commission has upheld a decision to reject Texaco's proposed emissions controls for gasoline deliveries in the St. Louis area.

In accordance with state efforts to check emission of hydrocarbons in transporting gasoline, Texaco filed a plan with the Missouri Division of Natural Resources calling for a top-loading method for moving gasoline from bulk storage depots to filling stations.

The plan incorporated a recovery system to prevent release of vapor while gasoline is moved from the bulk storage tanks to the delivery trucks, then to the distributors.

On March 28, the division notified Texaco that it had determined the proposal was not adequate.

The company and the staff testified Tuesday on how fast and effectively the vapor recovery system could work. The Division of Natural Resources defended its decision and the commission upheld it.

Petroleum companies were required submit control plans by Feb. 1, 1977; be ready to construct any necessary facilities by Feb. 1, 1978, and be in compliance with minimum standards by July 1, 1978.

Today's News In Brief

Handyman charged in death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Warrants were issued Sunday charging a 30-year-old odd jobs man with murder, kidnapping and robbery in the death of a 36-year-old north side woman and wounding of her two sons.

Police said the woman, Vernice Weary, was shot to death at her home early Saturday following a quarrel with Earl Wilkerson, 30, and an unidentified companion.

Following the shooting, police said, the two men abducted Michael Weary, 17, and Larry Weary, 14, driving the two to a railroad yard in East St. Louis, Ill., where each was shot.

The woman's sons, who were listed Sunday in fair condition at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis, identified Wilkerson as her assailant but were unable to identify Wilkerson's companion, police said.

Mrs. Weary's car was found abandoned near the railroad yard where her sons were taken. Wilkerson had worked as a handyman for the dead woman, police said.

Union against Ozark contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Union negotiators have recommended rejection of an Ozark Airlines contract offer for about 600 mechanics working without an agreement since last Oct. 1.

"The members aren't afraid to strike," said John W. Miller, a spokesman for Local 24 of the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association. "They don't necessarily want to, but this is our livelihood."

Larry Crews, Local 24 president, said balloting among the mechanics will be conducted either Wednesday or Thursday in St. Louis and 18 other cities served by Ozark and a strike called afterward if the agreement is turned down.

"Overall—wages, pension benefits and retirement—the complete contract was just considered substandard," Crews said of Ozark's offer.

An Ozark spokesman, Charles Ehler, said the company's offer was for a 32-month agreement during which mechanics' pay for the final period of the agreement would reach $10.10 an hour.

In addition, said Ehler, the proposal calls for improvements in the company's pension plan, increased benefits for health coverage and long-term disability and the resolution of work disputes.

Crews declined to discuss the specifics of the offer, noting only that mechanics' pay under the old contract was $8.15 an hour plus 20 cents through a cost-of-living clause.

"It's a situation where we'll accept it and send it back to the membership, but we're not going to recommend it," said negotiator Ronald Wirts.

The proposal by Ozark came out of Sunday sessions with federal mediator Harry Bickford after the union postponed an immediate strike set to have begun following expiration of a 30-day cooling off period at midnight Saturday.

Ozark, a regional carrier which serves 57 cities in 16 states, was struck by mechanics for 78 days in 1973. About 400 of its mechanics are based in St. Louis and another 125 belong to AMFA Local 4 in Chicago.

Women to explain disapproval

100 injured in plant protest

FAVERGES, France (AP) — Riot police and helmeted nuclear energy protesters battled near the site of a fast-breeder nuclear plant in southeastern France Sunday. One protester died of an apparent heart attack and more than 100 persons were injured, including five policemen.

Agaden rebels claim liberation

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somali-backed rebels in Ethiopia's Ogaden region claim to have "liberated" all but four towns in the arid plateau. The four towns were not identified. There has been no independent confirmation of rebel victory claims in the Ogaden, which makes up about two-thirds of Ethiopia's easternmost Harar province. Ethiopia radio, which usually reports on the conflict, made no mention of it in Sunday broadcasts.

SS reviews security measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service says it is reviewing White House security after a young man wandered unannounced into President Carter's study last week and asked Carter for directions to an aide's office.

But the agency, responsible for the President's safety, disputes how close the unidentified man actually got to Carter in the incident Friday.

"It was a case of him being in the wrong area for his appointment when he was located," said Jack Warner, a Secret Service spokesman. "Our review does not indicate he went into any office occupied by the President."

However, the Washington Post quoted sources as saying the young man "somehow managed to go out along the veranda and into the Oval Office," then went to Carter's study, where the President was working.

The Post said its source was convinced the incident happened "roughly" that way.

Other sources said the man asked the President where he could find the office of Mark Siegel, a White House aide.

The sources said Carter replied, "I believe it's downstairs," and the young man withdrew.

Siegel, an aide to presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan, was out of town Sunday, and the White House operator said he could not be reached.

Warner said the man was later identified and interviewed, but he refused to name him or give other details of the incident.

Fires burn Alaskan acreage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's worst fires in eight years have burned an estimated 830,000 acres — about 1,300 square miles — and are forcing fire fighters to retreat in order to protect native villages. The federal Bureau of Land Management said Sunday that one of the 68 separate fires had burned 300,000 acres about 100 miles northeast of Nome, while an 80,000-acre fire threatened the village of Shungnak 300 miles west of Fairbanks.

Iran cancels AWACS order

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government has canceled its order for a $1.5 billion American air defense system following President Carter's decision to delay the proposed sale in the face of bipartisan opposition in Congress, it was reliably reported here.

There was no confirmation of the cancellation from either the Iranian or the U.S. government, but Rastakhiz, newspaper of the ruling party here, was among those carrying banner headlines Sunday reporting withdrawal of Iran's letter of intent to purchase the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS).

Most papers said the decision was taken because of the Carter administration's delay but gave no sources for the report.

Carter announced the onemonth delay last Thursday after the House International Relations Committee voted in favor of a resolution disapproving the sale. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee appeared ready to follow suit.

Today's News In Brief

Handyman charged in death

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Warrants were issued Sunday charging a 20-year-old odd jobs man with murder, kidnapping and robbery in the death of a 36-year-old north side woman and wounding of her two sons.

Police said the woman, Vernice Weary, was shot to death at her home early Saturday following a quarrel with Earl Wilkerson, 20, and an unidentified companion.

Following the shooting, police said, the two men abducted Michael Weary, 17, and Larry Weary, 14, driving the two to a railroad in East St. Louis, Ill., where each was shot.

The woman's sons, who were listed Sunday in fair condition at St. Mary's Hospital in East St. Louis, identified Wilkerson as her assailant but were unable to identify Wilkerson's companion, police said.

Mrs. Weary's car was found abandoned near the railroad where her sons were taken. Wilkerson had worked as a handyman for the dead woman, police said.

Union against Ozark contract

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Union negotiators have recommended rejection of an Ozark Airlines contract offer for about 600 mechanics working without an agreement since last Oct. 1.

"The members aren't afraid to strike," said John W. Miller, a spokesman for Local 24 of the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association. "They don't necessarily want to, but this is our livelihood."

Larry Crews, Local 24 president, said balloting among the mechanics will be conducted either Wednesday or Thursday in St. Louis and 18 other cities served by Ozark and a strike called afterward if the agreement is turned down.

"Overall—wages, pension benefits and retirement—the complete contract was just considered substandard," Crews said of Ozark's offer.

An Ozark spokesman, Charles Ehler, said the company's offer was for a 32-month agreement during which mechanics "pay for the final period of the agreement would reach $10.10 an hour."

In addition, said Ehler, the proposal calls for improvements in the company's pension plan, increased benefits for health coverage and long-term disability and the resolution of work disputes.

Crews declined to discuss the specifics of the offer, noting only that mechanics "pay under the old contract was $8.15 an hour plus 20 cents through a cost-of-living clause."

"It's a situation where we'll accept it and send it back to the membership, but we're not going to recommend it," said negotiator Ronald Wirts.

The proposal by Ozark came out of Sunday sessions with federal mediator Harry Bickford after the union postponed an immediate strike set to have begun following expiration of a 30-day cooling off period at midnight Saturday.

Ozark, a regional carrier which serves 57 cities in 16 states, was struck by mechanics for 78 days in 1973. About 400 of its mechanics are based in St. Louis and another 125 belong to AMFA Local 4 in Chicago.

Women to explain disapproval

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking women in the Carter administration are reported ready to spell out to the President the reasons for their disenchantment with his position on federally financed abortions. Carter opposes using Medicaid funds to pay for elective abortions.

100 injured in plant protest

FAVERGES, France (AP) — Riot police and helmeted nuclear energy protesters battled near the site of a fast-breeder nuclear plant in southeastern France Sunday. One protester died of an apparent heart attack and more than 100 persons were injured, including five policemen.

Agaden rebels claim liberation

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somali-backed rebels in Ethiopia's Ogaden region claim to have "liberated" all but four towns in the arid plateau. The four towns were not identified. There has been no independent confirmation of rebel victory claims in the Ogaden, which makes up about two-thirds of Ethiopia's easternmost Harar province. Ethiopia radio, which usually reports on the conflict, made no mention of it in Sunday broadcasts.

SS reviews security measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Secret Service says it is reviewing White House security after a young man wandered unannounced into President Carter's study last week and asked Carter for directions to an aide's office.

But the agency, responsible for the President's safety, disputes how close the unidentified man actually got to Carter in the incident Friday.

"It was a case of him being in the wrong area for his appointment when he was located," said Jack Warner, a Secret Service spokesman. "Our review does not indicate he went into any office occupied by the President."

However, the Washington Post quoted sources as saying the young man "somehow managed to go out along the veranda and into the Oval Office," then went to Carter's study, where the President was working.

The Post said its source was convinced the incident happened "roughly" that way.

Other sources said the man asked the President where he could find the office of Mark Siegel, a White House aide.

The sources said Carter replied, "I believe it's downstairs," and the young man withdrew.

Siegel, an aide to presidential assistant Hamilton Jordan, was out of town Sunday, and the White House operator said he could not be reached.

Warner said the man was later identified and interviewed, but he refused to name him or give other details of the incident.

Fires burn Alaskan acreage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's worst fires in eight years have burned an estimated 830,000 acres — about 1,300 square miles — and are forcing fire fighters to retreat in order to protect native villages. The federal Bureau of Land Management said Sunday that one of the 68 separate fires had burned 300,000 acres about 100 miles northeast of Nome, while an 80,000-acre fire threatened the village of Shungnak 300 miles west of Fairbanks.

Iran cancels AWACS order

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — The government has canceled its order for a $1.5 billion American air defense system following President Carter's decision to delay the proposed sale in the face of bipartisan opposition in Congress, it was reliably reported here.

There was no confirmation of the cancellation from either the Iranian or the U.S. government, but Rastakhiz, newspaper of the ruling party here, was among those carrying banner headlines Sunday reporting withdrawal of Iran's letter of intent to purchase the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS).

Most papers said the decision was taken because of the Carter administration's delay but gave no sources for the report.

Carter announced the onemonth delay last Thursday after the House International Relations Committee voted in favor of a resolution disapproving the sale. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee appeared ready to follow suit.
